I. Description

This class will provide a survey of the politics of postcommunist Eastern Europe, from the emergence of national states in the interwar period through their accession to the European Union, and the specter of democratic backsliding since. Just as the collapse of the region's communist regimes took social scientists by surprise in 1989, so too has the divergence of political and economic trajectories since. In some countries, democratic institutions were swiftly consolidated. In others, initial gains have been reversed and "illiberal democracies" are taking shape. Likewise in the economic sphere, outcomes have varied widely: while some governments quickly managed difficult reforms and laid the conditions for growth, others faced extended economic stagnation. Finally, a number of the region's states have joined the European Union and NATO, a process that, arguably, has deepened democracy and cemented economic reforms even as it adds new complexity to the postcommunist transition. Most recently, Russia's invasion of Ukraine has destabilized security for the whole region. In short, the range of outcomes in postcommunist Europe makes the region an ideal laboratory for testing the explanatory power of major theories of comparative politics. Our survey of political and economic developments in this region will cover (de-)democratization and political participation; privatization and macroeconomic reform; nationalism and ethnic conflict; as well as regional integration. Though we will cover the whole region, the countries that will receive primary consideration are Poland, the former Czechoslovakia, Hungary, the former Yugoslavia, and Romania.

II. Textbooks:

There are two required books, which are available for purchase at the university text book store:

- Gale Stokes, The Walls Came Tumbling Down: Collapse and Rebirth in Eastern Europe, 2nd edition (New York & London: Oxford University Press, 2012).
- Witold Szablowski, Dancing Bears: True Stories of People Nostalgic for Life Under Tyranny (Penguin Books, 2018).

The rest of the readings will be available on Canvas under the "Files" tab.

I expect you to have completed the relevant assigned readings prior to class and to be ready to discuss them. As you will notice below, the readings are grouped by week. In each class period, I will keep you posted on which readings I will expect you to have completed for the next period. The reading schedule below is subject to change depending on the pace of progress and unforeseen scheduling changes. Please refer to the online syllabus for the latest version.

III. Assignments and Grading

Grades will be based on the following elements:

- Attendance (3% of grade): Class attendance is essential to success in this course. Repeated absences will unquestionably affect your performance on exams since they will be based on class lectures and section discussions in addition to readings.
- Participation in class discussion and activities/assignments (15% of grade): Student participation is an important component of this course. I assume full and active engagement with the readings, lectures, and discussions in the class. There will be frequent in-class assignments: essay prompts, debates, group work, and quizzes. Many of these will be turned in via Canvas and counted toward the participation grade. In the interests of fairness and given the size of the course, there will be no extra credit assignments. Oral participation will be assessed based on the instructor's assessment of how engaged each student was in class discussion and activities over the course of the semester. In terms of grading participation on individual assignments, there will be three possible categories: highly engaged (100%), moderately engaged (75%), insufficiently engaged (50%), and unengaged/incomplete assignment (0%).
  - NOTE: Because many in-class activities and assignments will require using Canvas, students will need to bring a laptop or other device capable of logging in to Canvas.
- Two in-class response essays (30% of grade (15% per essay)): For these essays, students will prepare beforehand by reading an assigned text. Then on the day of the assignment, students will bring a laptop to class, where they will have the full class period to write their essay via Canvas. The essay prompts will not be available until the day of the assignment, at the beginning of the class period.
  - In-class response essay #1, covering Havel "Power of the Powerless" Feb 2.
  - In-class response essay #2, covering
- Two in-class tests: These will be multiple-choice format and will cover the relevant material for each half of the semester.
  - Test #1 (25%): March 1, in class.
  - Test #2 (25%): April 17, in class.

- In-class debate “Whither Ukraine” (2% of grade): April 19 & 22. This assignment will give students the opportunity to apply the knowledge from the semester to assessing the future of democracy in contemporary Ukraine.

IV. Policy on Make-Up Assignments

With regard to assignments, in-class exercises and tests, however, it will only be possible to make them up if the absence is excused. The terms for make-up assignments, including late penalties, are at the instructor's discretion. In the case of exams, a make-up is possible only with notification to the instructor prior to the exam and official medical documentation as to why the student was physically unable to take the exam. Make-ups for exam absences falling outside of these criteria will be scheduled at the instructor's discretion. They may take different form (essays) and may be assessed a late penalty.

According to the Office of the University Registrar, “acceptable reasons for absence from class include illness, serious family emergencies, special curricular requirements (e.g., judging trips, field trips, and professional conferences), military obligation, severe weather conditions, religious holidays and participation in official university activities such as music performances, athletic competition or debate. Absences from class for court-imposed legal obligations (e.g., jury duty or subpoena) must be excused.”

V. Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities who experience learning barriers and would like to request academic accommodations should connect with the Disability Resource Center (DRC). Click here to get started with the Disability Resource Center \(Links to an external site.\). It is the student’s responsibility to contact the DRC at the beginning of the semester and to share their accommodation letter with their instructor and discuss their access needs as early as possible in the semester.
