Words, Culture and Social Movement

Dieynaba Sall

Discovering

Language is not static. Instead it evolves as new words are created to express new sentiments in society, hence leading to movements both rebellious and artistic.

This project introduces students to the concept of artists rebelling against the status quo to coin new words which create social and artistic movements, one in particular, Afrobubblegum art.

Students will be introduced to select art movements worldwide.

Students will read articles and watch videos about Afrobubblegum, identify characteristic words and discuss in pairs their impressions.

Students will write and present a final project on a word created to express an idea in the Sciences or Politics or any domain of their liking, including the Arts.

Students Will Be Able To:

- Read texts and watch videos in French at L3 level.
- Using key vocabulary, share interpretations, offer and defend opinions.
- Write and present in French a paper highlighting a word specific to a domain.
